

Camp gives kids a break

More than 70 children and their siblings gathered at the American Cancer Society's Camp Summersault the first week of August. Above are Karen Braverman-Freeman of Long Beach, Veronica Craighead of Long Beach, Rachel Waxman of Manhattan Beach, Dr. L. Wayne Freeman of Long Beach and Keith Williams of Long Beach, from left. The camp at Long Beach's Camp Fire USA was free to participants. The theme was "A Pirate's Life For Me," and campers made wooden parrots, jewelry, rode horses, made campfires and many other activities. At right, Campers Kara Walters of Buena Park, Aarin Bowen-Spacht of Signal Hill and Colin Ramsey of Long Beach, from left, create beaded jewelry.

